Rooted in Faith, Growing Through Community

In 1979, the Armenian Community Centre and A.R.S. Day School were inaugurated in Toronto, marking a significant milestone for the local Armenian community.

At that time, the Catholicosate of the Great House of Cilicia recognized the absence of an Armenian Church in Toronto. A pivotal moment came in 1983 when a petition led to the approval for the establishment of a new church. This decision was made under the auspices of the Prelacy of Canada and Eastern United States, with the blessings of His Holiness Karekin II, Catholicos of the Great House of Cilicia (formerly Karekin I of All Armenians), and the guidance of His Eminence Archbishop Mesrob Ashjian.

In 1987, the Blessing of the Foundation Ceremony took place, and on May 27, 1990, the new church building was blessed and officially consecrated as St. Mary Armenian Apostolic Church.

The church underwent significant renovations in the spring of 2012 under the auspices of then Prelate of Canada, Archbishop Khajag Hagopian.

Over the past 35 years, the Armenian community has continued to flourish. The church itself highlights the growth of the Armenian community in Toronto but also showcases the church's commitment to serving and nurturing a diverse congregation that reflects the broader Toronto community.
